You Can't Win
You Can’t Win, the beloved memoir of real lowdown Americana by criminal hobo Jack Black, was first published in 1926, then reprinted in 1988 by Adam Parfrey’s Amok Press, featuring an introduction by William S. Burroughs. After its Amok Press edition went out of print, You Can’t Win found popularity once again with the AK Press edition. Feral House’s new version will take this classic American narrative a lot further, including two remarkable nonfiction articles by Jack Black written for Harper’s Magazine in the 1920s. Remarkable illustrations by Joe Coleman and new biographical revelations by Donald Kennison will round out the new edition. A full-length feature film of You Can’t Win starring Boardwalk Empire’s Michael Pitt is expected to be released in spring 2013.

Book Information

Paperback: 400 pages
Publisher: Feral House; Enlarged edition (June 25, 2013)
Language: English
ISBN-10: 1936239612
Product Dimensions: 1 x 6 x 9 inches
Shipping Weight: 1.1 pounds (View shipping rates and policies)
Average Customer Review: 4.7 out of 5 stars
Best Sellers Rank: #110,959 in Books (See Top 100 in Books)
#9 in Biographies & Memoirs > Regional Canada
#172 in Biographies & Memoirs > True Crime > Organized Crime
#336 in Biographies & Memoirs > Specific Groups > Crime & Criminals

Customer Reviews

For such an old book, this one is excellent. The style is amazingly simple but effective. It reminded me almost of Charles Bukowski’s work at some points. I can see why William Burroughs would have admired this memoir and even cherished it.

I knew nothing about this book or the author before I started reading it and it was a really pleasant surprise. It’s the warts-n-all memoir of a career criminal (specifically: a prowler) at the end of the 19th century/start of the 20th century. The author doesn’t attempt to justify his life of crime or blame it on a troubled upbringing/society. He just tells it straight. Fascinating book, and this edition has some further essays by the author at the back on crime and justice which are also worth reading.
I'm half way through this book and I find it riveting. An absolutely mesmerizing account by a turn of the century grifter, hobo, and thief. It is well written, and paints an unforgettable portrait of this strata of society at a pivotal point in our country's history. I can't recommend it highly enough.

I enjoyed this book. It held my attention so well that I finished it within two days. It transported me vividly into the seedy underbelly of late nineteenth century America. I found myself in the presence of such larger than life characters as Salt Chunk Mary, the Sanctimonious Kid, Smiler, and âœFoot-and-a-halfâ•George. I could smell the scent of cheap rooming-houses. I could feel the tension of slowly sneaking a wallet out from under a sleeping manâ™s pillow. I bought it because of its much-documented influence on William Burroughs. He first read it aged thirteen and it remained a significant part of his inner landscape for the rest of his life. It is easy to see why this book had such an attraction for the young Burroughs. Itâ™s almost as if the thirteen year old knew where he was heading as soon as he had read this book. Prose style, life-perspective, and many of the characters could (and do) walk straight out of âœYou Canâ™t Winâ•and into a Burroughs text. Anyone who knows anything about âœEl Hombre Invisibleâ•will recognise the following: here is the Sanctimonious Kid advising the young Jack on page 118.âœDo you want everybody to look at you? Do you want everybody that looks at you to remember you? You do not. You want as few people to look at you as possible, and you want those few to forget you as soon as possible,â•he continued with emphasis.âœWhat you want is clothes that will not detain the eye for a second. Expensive as you like, and well-fitting, but not loud or striking. You want clothes that a man or woman could not describe as blue, brown or black five minutes after looking at you. You want neutral clothes. Be as positive yourself as you like, but no positive clothes. Youâ™ve got to watch yourself, Kid. You know that âœold maximâ™, eternal vigilance.â•This book is well worth reading. The illustrations by Joe Coleman are also memorable.

The author isn't who you may think he is. Rather than being the modern comedic genius, this Jack Black is a turn-of-the-century hobo, thief, and all-around ne'er do well. He gives the reader a clear, unblemished picture of life in the old-timey US from the perspective of a hobo and chronic jail bird. A fascinating read!

Straightforward narration of a youth's criminal education and practice, starting in the western US early in the last century. Jack Black in his own words comes off as a smart if somewhat amoral young man, without much pretense (though I’m not qualified to say whether he made this stuff up or not). No wonder William Burroughs was entranced when he read this as a kid -- If you like Jim Thompson's bellhop tales, dig in here. Great anecdotes, deadpan.

Great storytelling blended with insight on how to rob a bank and live by the criminal code (a code we can all abide by).

Many interesting stories of a wayward life, unsavory types and their rude behavior in the early 20th century. This should be required reading in every home for delinquents. It's interesting how Mr. Black keeps pointing out how little all his sincere efforts at being a professional criminal paid him over time. In the midst of all his sickening stories of crime and criminal acts, he mentions several times how if he'd just gotten a regular trade job at the start of his self-providing life, he'd have been immeasurably further ahead at the end, in riches, both real and social, than his life of crime ever gained him.

Download to continue reading...

How to Win at the Sport of Business: If I Can Do It, You Can Do It Microsoft Win32 Developer’s Reference Library - (Microsoft Developers Library Win 32 BASE SERVICES (Microsoft Win 32 - Base Services) Heads I Win, Tails I Win: Why Smart Investors Fail and How to Tilt the Odds in Your Favor Habit 4 Think Win-Win: The Habit of Mutual Benefit (7 Habits of Highly Effective People Signature) Confessions of a Real Estate Entrepreneur: What It Takes to Win in High-Stakes Commercial Real Estate: What it Takes to Win in High-Stakes Commercial Real Estate I CAN CAN RELISHES, Salsa, Sauces & Chutney!!: How to make relishes, salsa, sauces, and chutney with quick, easy heirloom recipes from around the ... (I CAN CAN Frugal Living Series) (Volume 3) You Can If You Think You Can A Drive to Win: The Story of Nancy Lieberman-Cline (Anything You Can Do... New Sports Heroes for Girls) Confessions of a Scholarship Winner: The Secrets That Helped Me Win $500,000 in Free Money for College - How You Can Too! You Can’t Win Rich Dad Advisors: Buying and Selling a Business: How You Can Win in the Business Quadrant (Rich Dad's Advisors (Audio)) A Man, a Can, a Microwave: 50 Tasty Meals You Can Nuke in No Time (Man, a Can... Series) Dirty Little Secrets: Why buyers can't buy and sellers can't sell and what you can do about it Resume Writing 2016: Get the Job You Actually Want- An Ultimate Guide on Resume Writing and Tips to Win You Your Dream Job It's Not Over Until You Win: How to Become the Person You Always Wanted to Be -- No Matter What the Obstacles Insecure in Love: How Anxious Attachment Can Make You Feel Jealous, Needy, and Worried and What You Can Do About It
Pendulum Power: A Mystery You Can See, A Power You Can Feel You Can Write a Column (You Can Write It!) But My Family Would Never Eat Vegan!: 125 Recipes to Win Everyone Over_Picky kids will try it, hungry adults won't miss meat, and holiday traditions can live on! (But I Could Never Go Vegan!) The Field of Fight: How We Can Win the Global War Against Radical Islam and Its Allies

Dmca